W Corp. Fails to Acquire InfoWars

ALBANY, NY – Today, W Corp. attempted to purchase the InfoWars property, including the platform’s website, social media accounts, studio in Austin, trademarks, and video archive. Unfortunately, following an intense bidding war to acquire InfoWars, the property was acquired by Global Tetrahedron LLC.

While purchasing the InfoWars property could have expanded W Corp.’s extensive reach, company leadership remains optimistic.

“W Corp. has always led the way by establishing its own brands and properties, unique to our image. So, while today’s developments did not meet our expectations, we plan to continue our dedicated work to Win the Future,” said Dr. V. Elon, CEO of W Corp.

W Corp. currently owns and operates several subsidonyms, including Warstool, a sports, pop culture, and war blog, and The Weekly Wire, a political media company. In October, it was announced that W Corp. would operate MovieViral.com in a joint partnership agreement with Sometimes Weekly.
